

Little Baby Meets Death In Peculiar Way

—4-12-1925

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Clark, who occupy the farm formerly owned by Louie Karnopp, south of Groton, met its death in a peculiar way Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark were returning to their home from Ferney, and upon leaving snugly wrapped the baby and placed it in the back seat of the automobile. When they arrived home they found that the child had smothered to death. All efforts to revive it were futile.
